INAUGURATION
of the
EUROPEAN FRIEDRICH-LIST-PRIZE
2017

to young scientists in European Transport Sciences

For the 12th consecutive time the European Platform of Transport Sciences – EPTS – awards a prize dedicated to young transport researchers. The prize is named “European Friedrich-List-Prize” to honour the extraordinary contributions of Friedrich List, a visionary of transport in Europe of the 19th century, being a distinguished economist and respected transport scientist committed to the European idea. The European Friedrich-List-Prize is awarded for outstanding scientific papers in each of the following categories:

Doctorate paper (PhD or comparable)

1,000 €

and

Diploma paper (Master Thesis or comparable)

500 €.

The submitted papers should address topics in the transport field within a European context and from a European perspective, ideally making reference and contributing to the sustainable development of elements and modes within pan-European or cross-border transport. The subject should be characterized by its international scope while papers elaborating on technical matters are equally accepted as those with a background in economics or another discipline.

Eligible for submission are all scientific papers accomplished no longer than two years ago and which have not been submitted successfully in another award competition. Papers may be written by individuals or a team of authors (up to five persons), being citizens of a country in Europe and under forty years of age at the time of submission. Recommendations may only be made by full professors of universities or directors of research institutions. Applications by the authors themselves will not be considered. The application dossier must include:

1. The full version of the paper in any European language.
2. An executive summary of five to ten A4 pages in English language.
3. A short CV of the author(s).
4. Recommendations are to be verified by the professor in a statement written in English or German language.
